iOS Sprint 6 Bug Report/Exploration Test Findings

iOS looks pretty good overall. I would say edit the homepage so that it fits the color scheme of the rest of the app. Milestone detail page isn't working currently so I can't really comment on the features related to that page. The line graph for the project detail is a little bit hard to read with light blue lines on a dark blue background with black text. The user profile page seems like kind of a weird place for the logout button but I can't really think of anywhere else for it to go. The next sprint seems like it's going to add more detail to the profile pages so the logout will look less awkward. The only other bug I saw was clicking on the "metrics" button on the homepage crashes the app. I'm guessing just because this page hasn't really been implemented yet. Until you do that I'd just add a dummy page that doesn't have anything on it just so it doesn't crash every time it's clicked.

I've noticed whenever I run the app in xcode a bunch of warnings pop up. Not sure if these are just coming up on my xcode and not yours, but if you guys are getting those warnings as well, that would be a good task for a refactoring feature if we have one in the next sprint.

Thanks,

Donnie
